OH, BABY!

Sept. 9

The day after they welcomed him into the world, HILARIA and ALEC BALDWIN proudly took to Instagram to announce the birth of their fifth child — a boy who has clearly stolen the hearts of his mom and dad. "He is perfect, and we couldn't be happier," Hilaria captioned the pic, telling her followers to "stay tuned" for the newborn's name. The little guy joins siblings Carmen, 6, Rafael, 5, Leonardo, 3, and Romeo, 2, plus Alec's daughter Ireland, 24.

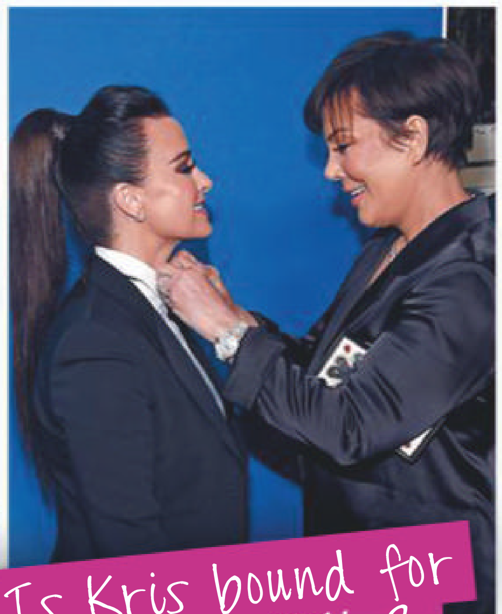
inside HOLLYWOOD

After what will be 20 seasons and 14 years, "the ratings just aren't what they used to be," confesses a source, "and the family came to an agreement to quit while they were ahead."

Kardashians CANCELED!



Is Kris bound for Beverly Hills?

Shortly after the news broke, fans began to speculate that Kris, 64, wants to join The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills. Perhaps her BFF Kyle Richards could put in a good word!

Keeping up with the Kardashians just got a little harder! On Sept. 8, Kim Kardashian announced that Keeping Up With the Kardashians will be coming to an end in early 2021. "We are beyond grateful to all of you who've watched us for all of these years," the reality star, 39, wrote on Instagram, "through the good times, the bad times, the happiness, the tears, and the many relationships and children." Though the news might have come as a shock to fans, "everyone in the family knew this day was inevitable. There's been buzz about ending the series for years, with executives going back and forth on whether or not to save it," an insider tells Life & Style. "The show really put E! on the map, but times have changed, financially speaking. The network has been going through many internal changes and the show is an expensive series to make." Indeed, the last, five-season contract the KarJenners reportedly signed in 2017 was worth a whopping $150 million. Now momager Kris Jenner is looking to cash in elsewhere. "She's all about staying relevant, and that means remaining in the public eye," says the source. "So she's been busy making deals to assure that there's always going to be a Kardashian or a Jenner show of some kind on the air!" L&S

Paris

NO ONE KNOWS THE REAL ME

"There is so much more to me than the girl they see on red carpets," insists the socialite.

Money can't buy you happiness, just ask Paris Hilton. The heiress, 39, opened up about her painful upbringing in a new documentary, This Is Paris, on YouTube. "I've been playing a character for so long that people would assume I was a dumb blonde," she tells Life & Style. "But I'm not, and what I have went through [has made] me the strong woman I am today." In the doc, which premiered on Sept. 14, Paris details the terrifying abuse she allegedly endured at Provo Canyon, a boarding school in Utah that she attended in the late '90s. "Every day there was complete torture, being verbally, emotionally and physically abused," the Simple Life star claims. "For so long I tried to erase those memories from my mind, but it was a very therapeutic experience to finally share my truth."

A tiny Tracy Flick!

When she was in the third grade, Reese Witherspoon told her teacher that she wanted to become the first female president. "Some of the kids laughed," the Election star recalled, sharing a super-cute school photo. "But my teacher looked me in the eye and said, 'I will be the first person to vote for you.'"

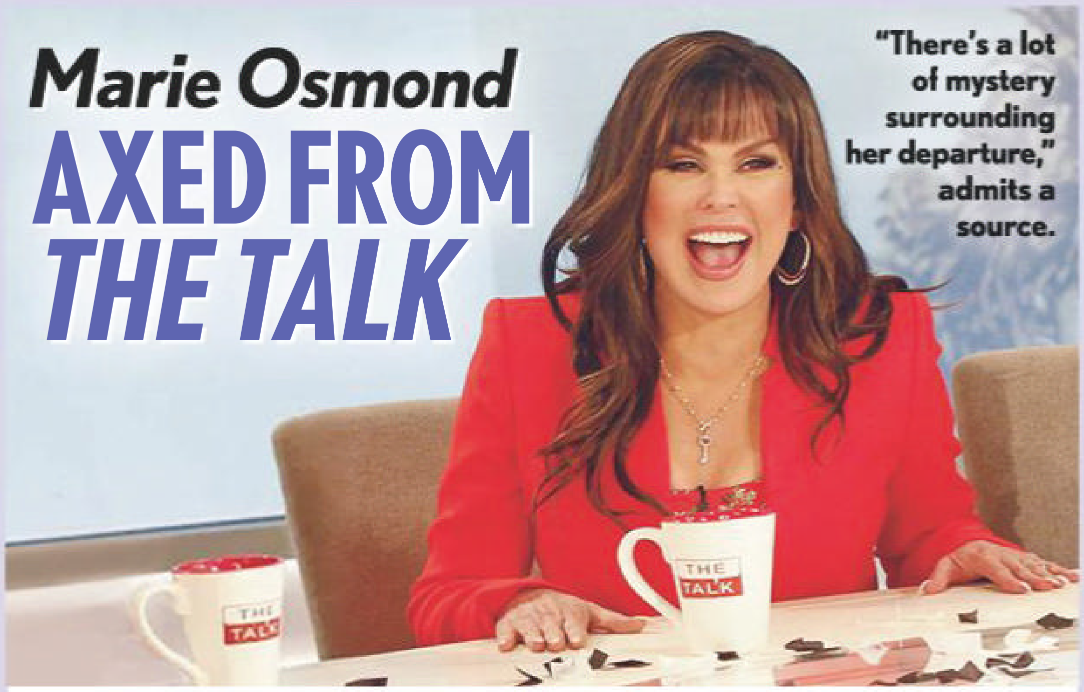
Marie Osmond AXED FROM THE TALK



"There's a lot of mystery surrounding her departure," admits a source.

So soon? Marie Osmond is leaving The Talk after just one season on the daytime chatfest — and although she's implied it was her decision, sources suspect the 60-year-old singer was forced off the CBS series. "It may have been voluntary, but some people are saying that Marie was actually let go," shares a source. The country music star joined Sharon Osbourne, Carrie Ann Inaba, Sheryl Underwood and Eve on set in September 2019, after having appeared on the Emmy award-winning show more than 40 times over the years. It wasn't long, however, before "she became very vocal about going solo," the source reveals. "There's rumors Marie was talking about hosting her own show and taking some of the talent with her, so they fired her!"

The Aussie actor asked fans for "kindness" after he was seen with the 19-year-old model.

DID KAIA COME BETWEEN JACOB & ZENDAYA?

Pure euphoria! Jacob Elordi, 23, and Kaia Gerber, 19, are finally going public with their romance after being spotted holding hands while strolling through the streets of NYC on Sept 7. "Everyone's excited about them dating, but there was one person who was left scratching her head," says an insider. His ex, Zendaya! The Kissing Booth hunk was rumored to have been dating the 24-year-old actress after they met on the set of HBO's hit series Euphoria in 2019, and while there was speculation that the couple had recently broken up, "the big question now is did Jacob dump Zendaya for Kaia?" says the insider. "Their friends are split 50/50. Jacob's pals swear he just moved on, while Zendaya's besties seem to think there was something fishy going on behind the scenes."

Keeping it casual? "Rumer and Armie are definitely hooking up," says a source. But, adds an insider, "he's not looking to settle down just yet."

PDA alert! Armie and Rumer wrapped their arms around each other's waists while out in LA on Sept. 2.

Rumer & Armie FLIRTING WITH DISASTER

The Lone Ranger has found a new sidekick! Armie Hammer has gone on several dates with Rumor Willis following his split from Elizabeth Chambers, a source confirms to Life & Style. The 34-year-old actor was photographed walking arm in arm with Demi Moore and Bruce Willis' eldest daughter, 32, in LA on Sept. 2. "Rumer thinks Armie's super hot and can't wait to see where this goes," reveals a source. "She knows that he just got out of a serious relationship, but she can't help but hope that this will turn into more than just a fling. Demi, however, doesn't think Armie's ready to commit to one woman." And for good reason! The Call Me by Your Name star, who had been with his wife for more than a decade, was seen grabbing lunch with Josh Lucas' ex Jessica Ciencin Henriquez at Osteria Mamma in LA just days before he stepped out with the Dancing With the Stars darling. "Armie has taken his new single lifestyle to the next level," admits an insider with close ties to the Social Network stud. The Hills alum, 33, "knows their marriage is over, but she can't just turn off her feelings for Jay with the flick of a switch," notes a source, "and she's finding it hard to accept that he's moved on so quickly."

Lily & David's VEGAS VOWS

What happens in Vegas doesn't stay in Vegas! Lily Allen and David Harbour tied the knot on Sept. 7 at the Graceland Wedding Chapel in Las Vegas before an Elvis impersonator. "This is Lily's second marriage but David's first, so she was all for going a bit more traditional," spills a source. "When he suggested a campy Vegas wedding, however, she jumped at the chance." A small reception followed at In-N-Out, where the Stranger Things star, 45, and the "Smile" singer, 35, scarfed down cheeseburgers.

Asserting Herself

Though Kate's long been seen as a dutiful and supportive wife to William, behind the scenes, says an insider, "Kate likes to be the one in control."

te Finally lks!

After years of drama, Kate Middleton opens up about the rifts in the royal family in the hopes of healing old wounds

When the going gets tough, the tough get going. That's certainly true of Kate Middleton. After Britain was forced to lock down in the spring amid the coronavirus crisis, she and husband Prince William, both 38, found themselves tasked with figuring out new ways to support the monarchy as Queen Elizabeth II, 94, stepped back from public duties to protect her health. It didn't take long for royal watchers to notice Kate's transformation from tentative and supportive wife to confident and playful Zoom call master as official appearances moved online. "She's been a real leader," observes a palace insider. "Kate's embraced the changes and really come into her own during these trying times."

It's happening at home, too. Following months of family infighting, and in the wake of unflattering claims made about her this summer in a book celebrating brother-in-law Prince Harry, 36, and his wife, Meghan Markle, 39, Kate's grown weary of all the negativity. Now the insider reveals that the Duchess of Cambridge has slowly but surely started to open up to friends about her side of the painful, complicated and sometimes infuriating rumors. "Kate's finally talking and getting her side of the story out there," explains the insider. "She's told pals that she's tired of Meghan always painting her as the bad guy — especially when it's Meghan's antics that tore apart the family. According to Kate, Meghan's been nothing but a conniving diva since the moment they met!"

HER TURN TO SPEAK UP

Kate's first comments on the epic royal feud have left her inner circle wanting more. "Friends are trying to convince her to go on TV for a sit-down interview," says the insider, adding that the future queen consort "hopes getting everything out in the open will eventually bring the royal family closer."

That healing has begun for some. After years of friction and hurt, says the insider, "William and Harry are back on speaking terms and getting along better. But the relationship between Meghan and Kate remains tense." In the best-selling book Finding Freedom, which came out in August, authors Omid Scobie and Carolyn Durand cited sources who claimed Kate "did

Big Ask
As she takes over as the most public female royal, Kate's been implored by Queen Elizabeth II to "repair the family," reveals the insider.

Baby Steps
As Life & Style previously reported, there's buzz that Meghan is also pregnant, and the insider says Kate "doesn't want to rock the boat with her and Harry" anymore.

little to bridge the divide." There's a story, for example, that when Kate met Meghan, she told her she was welcome to get in touch if she needed anything. Yet that was followed with allegedly unsupportive behavior, including one "awkward" incident that saw both women leaving Kensington Palace at the same time to go shopping on the same street — and Kate driving off in her Range Rover, leaving Meghan behind.

The tale didn't make Kate look good. "She's still angry about being slammed in Finding Freedom and is pretty sure Meghan was behind the anecdotes," says the insider. "Kate's told pals that if her reaction was cold, it was Meghan's own fault — she acted entitled from the start and refused to respect tradition, failing to even say 'please' and 'thank you.'"

However, since learning that Meghan and Harry inked a multimillion-dollar Netflix deal, which will see them producing documentaries, scripted shows and more for the streaming giant, Kate's made an attempt to look at the bigger picture. "She says it's time to start the healing process and sees this as an opportunity to build bridges before it's too late," says the insider, "and maybe even collaborate."

REGAL POISE

Her new role as, essentially, a stand-in for Queen Elizabeth — who palace courtiers confirm won't return to public duties until the threat of COVID-19 has abated — requires her to be the bigger person. "Kate's taking over for the queen, and part of that is finding ways to reunite the family," says the insider. "It might seem like a shocking U-turn given all the backstabbing that's gone on, but Kate understands that it's necessary for the monarchy to survive."

Some relationships are harder to repair than others, though. In royal expert Ingrid Seward's new book Prince Philip Revealed it's claimed the queen's husband, 99, has accused grandson Harry of a "dereliction of duty" for leaving Britain for a new life in Hollywood with his American wife. "Kate can only hope speaking fondly of Harry and explaining the reasons he departed helps mend his rift with Philip," says the insider, though fears remain Philip will "never be able to forgive Harry because of how he handled his exit."

The great unifier — a baby — could aid Kate in her cause. In recent weeks there have been whispers that she and William are expecting again. As a source previously told Life & Style, Kate, who's already mom to Prince George, 7, Princess Charlotte, 5, and Prince Louis, 2, has "always wanted four children," just like the queen. "There are rumors that she's having a girl," gushes the source, "and Kate is talking about naming her Diana, after William's mom!"

Now Kate just wants peace for her brood. Says the insider, "Talking about the feuds and getting all that behind her means she and William can focus on the future." L&S

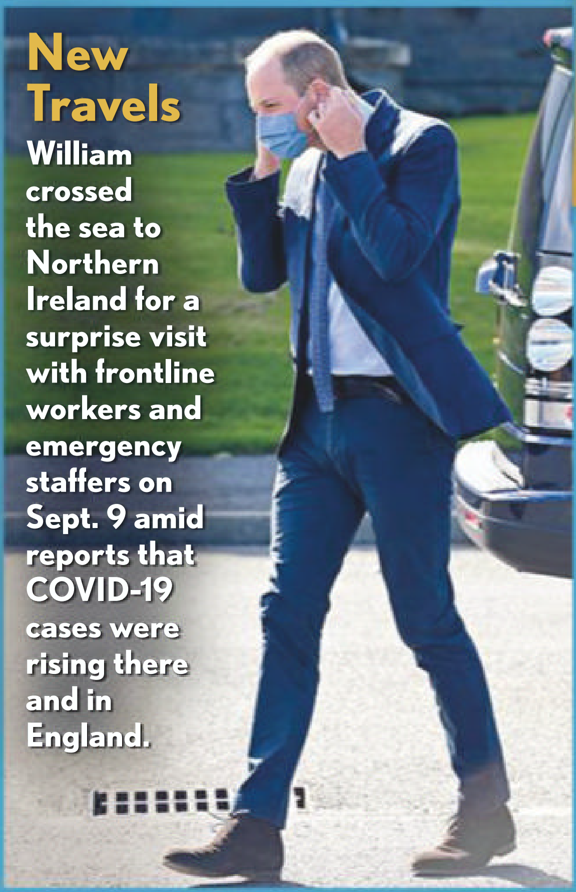
SEPTEMBER HAS BEEN HECTIC

A Gruesome Discovery

In early September, police confirmed that a woman's dead body was found on Aug. 29 in the Round Pond next to Kensington Gardens, which is adjacent to William and Kate's London home.

Back to School

With homeschooling and summer break behind them, George and Charlotte returned to classes the week of Sept. 7. "It's been wonderful," William said of spending extra time with the kids, "but it's been a long five months."



New Travels

William crossed the sea to Northern Ireland for a surprise visit with frontline workers and emergency staffers on Sept. 9 amid reports that COVID-19 cases were rising there and in England.

Bad News for Brad
The hidden tapes, an insider says, "could be devastating to Brad's image" as a good-hearted family man.

Angrier Than Ever!
Brad's decision to take Nicole to the home they once shared "pushed Angie over the edge," says an insider.

Angie's Revenge Bombshell

SECRET RECORDINGS OF BRAD

After Brad Pitt goes public with his new love, Angelina Jolie threatens to release shocking footage of him

On His Side!
"Nicole will stand by Brad no matter what," the insider claims of the German model.

The battle continues. Four years after she filed for divorce from Brad Pitt, Angelina Jolie has extended their fight, asking for the judge on their case to be removed due to a conflict of interest — and the exes can't even see eye to eye on who will rule on her request. After a Sept. 3 emergency hearing, the case was sent to California's Judicial Council, with no solution reached.

Why dig in her heels now? Life & Style's learned that Angie, 45, wants revenge more than ever. This August, Brad, 56, took new gal pal Nicole Poturalski, 27, to Château Miraval six years to the day after he and Angelina were married at the French estate. Humiliated, his ex is pulling out all of the stops to get her way in their divorce, says an insider, once and for all. "Prolonging the proceedings is just the beginning," notes the insider. "Angie has secret tapes of Brad, and she's angry enough to go public with them."

DANGEROUS MATERIAL

The tapes, which consist of security footage and "possibly Angie's own cellphone recordings," were made before Brad gave up drinking four years ago, the insider says. And they could be used as a salvo in their ongoing custody war over Pax, 16, Zahara, 15, Shiloh, 14, and twins Vivienne and Knox, 12. (Son Maddox, 19, is old enough to decide whom he sees.) "Brad's pals are afraid Angie may have captured him drunk or yelling at the kids," the insider shares. "He'd better watch his back." L&S

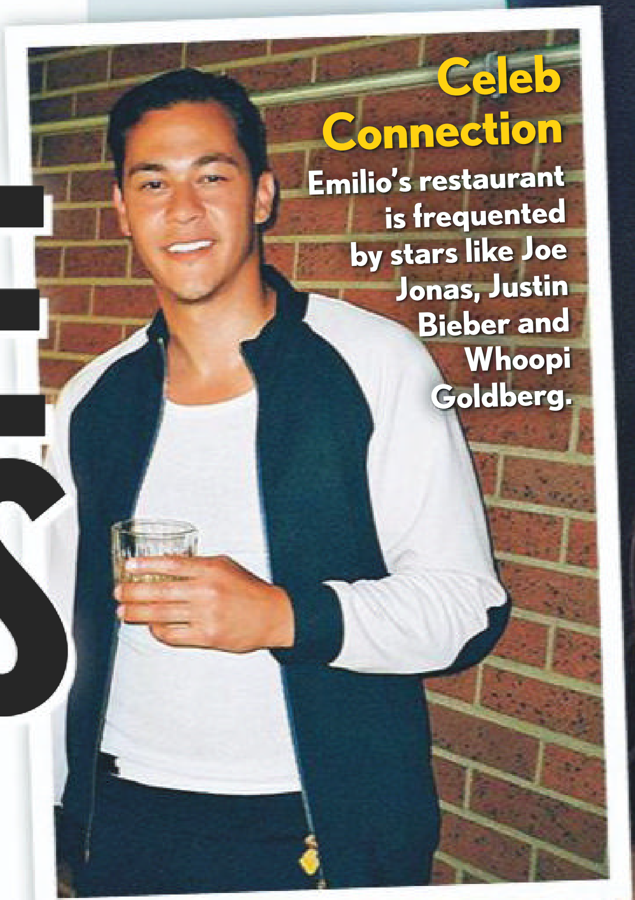
KATIE FINDS LOVE AGAIN!

A year after her split from Jamie Foxx, Katie Holmes pours on the PDA with chef Emilio Vitolo Jr.



Celeb Connection
Emilio's restaurant is frequented by stars like Joe Jonas, Justin Bieber and Whoopi Goldberg.

She's So Happy!
"Whenever Emilio's name is mentioned, Katie's face lights up," says a source. "She won't stop talking about how amazing he is."

So much for social distancing! On Sept. 6, Katie Holmes put on a show for her fellow diners at NYC's Peasant restaurant, locking lips with Emilio Vitolo Jr. as she sat on the handsome chef's lap at an outdoor table. "Katie is crazy about Emilio," says a source of the 41-year-old actress' new younger man, 33. "He's the first guy she's genuinely cared about in a long time."

Indeed, Katie hasn't dated anyone seriously since her six-year relationship with Jamie Foxx, 52, ended last summer. But the source says her latest romance has been worth the wait. "Emilio is charming and witty and constantly has Katie in hysterics," details the source of the hunk, whose family runs NYC eatery Emilio's Ballato. "He's helped her finally get over Jamie. It's clear Katie's in love again!"

A LOT IN COMMON

The feeling's mutual. Katie and Emilio have "bonded over their passions for culture, cooking and fine dining," the source says. "Since they started dating, Katie hasn't stopped smiling. And Emilio is just as smitten with her."

Their love is not without controversy, though. A friend of Emilio's longtime live-in fiancée, Rachel Emmons, alleges that the restaurateur sent the fashion designer a breakup text just hours before stepping out with Katie for the first time on Sept. 1. "Katie knew about Rachel," claims the friend. "They were sneaking around Rachel's back for a while."

Some fear Katie could be the next one headed for heartbreak. "Emilio is very ambitious," cautions the source, "but Katie says she can see a future with him." L&S

TYRA: My Kid's Embarrassed When I Dance!

As Season 29 of Dancing with the Stars kicks off, Tyra Banks tells Life & Style she'll stick to hosting

There's more than one performer in Tyra Banks' household. The new Dancing With the Stars host may have a future contestant on her hands with son York. "He loves to dance," Tyra tells Life & Style. "I'm hoping one day he'll find the beat. But he does love to dance!"

The 4-year-old hoofer doesn't love when Tyra joins in, though. "He's already doing that thing that a 12-year-old does when their mom dances, which is kind of like 'Mom, stop! Oh my God, you're so bad!'" says the 46-year-old, admitting that she'd likely fall short as a competitor on DWTS. "Something in my brain really struggles with choreography. If they started a free-style season, they could call me. Other than that, it'll never happen!"

EXPANDING HER 'FAMILY'

Hosting, however, is another story. "It's just in my bones," insists the America's Next Top Model and America's Got Talent alum. Still, her latest sashay into the ballroom ruffled a few feathers, bringing on the abrupt dismissals of longtime DWTS hosts Tom Bergeron and Erin Andrews. "Hosting a live show is one of the hardest things in the world... and they are experts in it," she says of following in the pair's footsteps. "I'm just super excited to be joining a family that is already so strong, so successful and so beautiful." L&S

Not Ready to Rumba

Noting that she isn't "that strong with choreography," Tyra says that she has no "recollection" of ever being asked to compete on DWTS in the past.

Her Littlest Critic – and Fan!

Though he may not adore Tyra's dance moves, York loves seeing his mommy on TV. Because of COVID-19 restrictions, the star tells Life & Style, "he'll be watching from home with my mom."

Clue #1

Before they tied the knot, the couple went through a split — but they didn't hang around at home and cry about it. Staying true to their types during their roughly two-year break, he dated model Sofia Richie and she was spotted with pop stud Shawn Mendes.

Clue #2

Talk about a hair-raising event! Back when he was a teen idol, the man of the house got his locks cut and attempted to auction the clippings off on eBay for $12,000. They wound up going for $40,000, all of which the celebrity donated to charity.

Clue #3
